New Jersey, grand jury for alleged violation of the law at the Guttenburg race track during January and February, 1802. Thomas F. Egan, manager of the betting ring, is also indicted. The court room yesterday at Jersey City was crowded when the indictments were handed up. Among the spectators were many politicians and officers, all friends of the indicted men. Judge Lippincott refused to disclose the names of the men against whom indictments had been found for the offenses alleged, but the information was subsequently obtained from a reliable source. The list contains these names: Dennis McLaughlin, John C. Carr, Frederick Walbaum, Nicholas Crusius, Samuel Whitehead, Thomas F. Egan, James F. Caldwell, J. J. Burke, John F. Madden, owners and officers; Police Superintendent C. P. Smith, Police Captain John F. Kelly, Police Sergeant John F. Gannon, Detectives John Closs and Michael F. Clarke, Policemen John Hunt, Joseph Barry, Walter Felix and Detectives and

The indictments against the owners and officers of the track are for keeping a disorderly house. The justices of the peace and Jersey City police are charged with conspiracy, assault and battery, and as dis-orderly persons. Capias will be issued to-morrow for the indicted men. Allen F. Mcmorrow for the indicted men. Allen F. Mc-Dermott, clerk to the court of chancery and chairman of the democratic state commit-tee, will defend them.

The state legislature now in session will pany in several particulars, and especially abilities are that what is known as the Edmondson avenue line will be used, and connection will be made with the tracks operated by the Traction Company, which now form a network of rails leading to almost every point in Baltimore, crossing the principal streets and passing along one side of the city hall and post office. The traction line crosses Baltimore street at four principal points in the heart of the city—at Holliday street, at North and South streets, by the Sun and American offices; at Charles street, by the Herald office, and at Howard street, winding thence through the narrow there was a large crowd present. As soon as time was called the two negroes went at the city hall and post office. The traction line crosses Baltimore street at four principal points in the heart of the city hall and post office. This was too hot for Harris, and he refused to continue, saying he had been drunk all day and was in no condition to fight. The decision therefore went to Watkins, also four-fitths of the $50 purse, the other $10 going to Harris. Time, 1:20.

This summary end of the bout by rome means pleased the crowd, and they begand to shout, "Fake, fake." The Baltimore and Ohlo people, however, are expected by the Boulevard company to declare war and fight them with all their power and influence in their endeavor to secure additional privileges of any sort. In fact, it is claimed by the promoters of the new enterprise that the Baltimore and Ohlo corporation will throw every possible obstacle in the path of the new company and do all in its power to keep it from gaining any more privileges. license.

Then the management urged Harris to continue the fight, but Deputy Sheriff Vinzant arose and said if the men went together as they had done he would arrest them. The men then sparred four friendly rounds, Watkins outpointing Harris. The blow Harris received over the eve was a they had the properties of the secure additional privileges of any sort. The club people know this, and they feel that the governor has cleverly eluded the snare which has been set for him.

The impression is that at present the governor has the club in a hole, so far as pulling off the big mill is concerned.

There will be a meeting of the business men of Jacksonville tonight to protest against the action of Gov. Mitchell in ordering troops to Jacksonville on the occasion of the Corbett-Mitchell fight. A proon that line. Hence, the alleged apathy or friendship of the Pennsylvania company and the alleged hostility of the other great corporation is accounted for. towns will be laid out on the property owned or to be purchased by the company. Trees will be planted along the entire route, the promoters say, and everything will be done in the way of concessions and the of the dimensions of pillows and about as soft, and rarely indeed were the blows more than love pats. The crowd was there to witness slugging, and often it expressed its disapproval of the tameness of the exhibition by hisses and by imploring the men not to hurt each other.

Mr. Charles Sheperd acted as master of granting commutations to encourage people of moderate means from both the great to build houses and take up their residence along the line. Electricity will be furnished by the company to light the houses and for other domestic purposes, and the power houses of the company will not confidence in the page would have been compiled with within two seconds. The page would have who dwell along the line.

The sections of the boulevard near the towns already built, or to be built, on its route, will be made, it is claimed, especially fine. Excellent roadbeds will be constructed, the promoters assert, and, as soon as possible, the whole stretch between this city and the national capital will be made into a fine driveway for the use of those who may take up their homes on its borders as well as for others. The driveways will be wide enough for all purposes, so that no excuse may be given any one to encroach on the rallway tracks and thus interfere with the rapid movement of the cars.

The company, it is claimed, will not end with doing what is enumerated above. The certainty that a large population will settle along the line, and the fact that in the course of a few years at most it is expected the boulevard will be almost one continuous residence avenue, lined with cottages, villas and even costly mansions, from one city to another, will necessitate the furnishing water in some manner to the people. This will be done, the boulevard people say, through works built and mains laid by the company operating the road, or by an auxiliary company controlled by the same

In fact, it is proposed by this company to furnish not only the means of transportation to the large population which it is anticipated will have their homes on their lines and be their patrons, but also to fur-nish them with light, water, and, as the in-ventions of the future may warrant, with electricity for heating their houses and cooking their food as well.

The work done up to date has not been much, but it is sufficient, it is claimed, to show that business is meant and to secure the rights guaranteed by the charter of privileges already granted, and to warrant the company in the request which it will make at the present session of the general assembly to enlarge and extend those privileges in certain necessary and important

The subcommittee of the committee on rules, having the matter in charge, Senators Gorman and Manderson, have done nothing of late in the matter, as they do not care to press the project, which will call for an expenditure of about $200,000, during these days of economy. They may take up the question after the new bonds are issued.
